PORTFOLIO MANAGER COMMENTARY

When the Federal Reserve first introduced the term "transitory" several months ago to describe budding inflation, it seemed typical Fedspeak. Policymakers have long claimed that the disinflationary factors in place before the pandemic (demographics, globalization, automation, etc.) eventually will counter any emerging price pressures. They remain more concerned about avoiding Japan-like economic malaise. But as it has become apparent the U.S. recovery is robust, dismissing inflation is becoming dangerous. Even a temporary spike can have lasting consequences.

It really does come down to the definition of transitory. No one is expecting the Fed to predict the future. Yet its new average inflation targeting framework, which tolerates personal consumption expenditures (PCE) growth above 2% for "some time," suggests it has a period in mind because it has to select a starting point. So, how far back is the Fed going? If it picks the months just before the pandemic, then "transitory" likely will be shorter than if it chooses, say, 2014.

This makes a difference, especially if the economy starts to boil rather than simmer. Take the labor market. Employment remains well short of prepandemic levels and the Fed wants to wait until it is running hot before acting. But when the stimulus flow ends in fall, we may see some skill-set mismatches and employers struggling to fill positions. Costs from increasing wages often are passed on to the market as price hikes—or they aren't and company margins shrink. Either could be damaging to the economy.

More to the point is the prevailing narrative that pent-up consumer demand will be exhausted by the end of summer. We don't think that is likely. It's true that many Americans have booked themselves silly with vacations, shelled out to renovate their homes and bought tickets to concerts, games and other entertainment. But they can't spend everything at once. The personal savings rate is high enough to support many months of trips and activities. "Save the date" requests proliferate and demand for some larger purchases, from cars to durables, will have to wait for inventory restocking. Many people have a war chest of money that will last a while.

There is real potential this temporary period of rising inflation will turn into, well, a period. The Fed might need to act before it wants to. It already is considering tapering its monthly purchases of government securities, mentioned in an incredibly hedged sentence in the minutes to its April policy meeting: "A number of participants suggested...it might be appropriate at some point in upcoming meetings to begin discussing a plan for adjusting the pace of asset purchases." Cash managers and investors will welcome that.

Assets of the Pool ended May at $18.2 billion and the portfolio's gross yield was 13 basis points. Its weighted average maturity (WAM) was 50 days and its weighted average life (WAL) 62 days. WAL was extended by II days from April due to additions of floating-rate instruments. As federal stimulus funds continue to flow into the portfolio, the Pool's manager made trades across the liquidity portion of the London interbank offered rate (LIBOR) yield curve (overnight to one year) and across security types, including commercial paper and asset-backed commercial paper, both fixed and variable rate. Yields on I-, 3-, 6- and 12-month U.S. Treasuries were 0.00%, 0.01%, 0.03% and 0.04%, respectively; the I-, 3-, 6-and 12-month LIBOR were 0.09%, 0.13%, 0.17% and 0.25%, respectively.

ABOUT ANNUALIZED YIELDS:

Performance data in the table and chart is annualized, meaning that the amounts are based on yields for the periods indicated, converted to their equivalent if obtained for a 12-month period.

For example, ignoring the effects of compounding, an investment that earns 0.10% over a 1-month period yields 1.20% on an annualized basis. Likewise, an investment that earns a total of 3.60% over three years yields 1.20% on an annualized basis, ignoring compounding.

The 7-Day "SEC" Yield in the chart is calculated in accordance with the yield methodology set forth by SEC Rule 2a-7 for money market funds. The 7-day yield = net income earned over a 7-day period / average units outstanding over the period / 7 times 365. Note that unlike other performance measures, the SEC yield does not include realized gains and losses from sales of securities.

COMPLIANCE WITH INVESTMENT POLICY FOR MAY 2021

As investment manager, Federated monitors compliance daily on Florida PRIME to ensure that investment practices comply with the requirements of the Investment Policy Statement (IPS). Federated provides a monthly compliance report to the SBA and is required to notify the Investment Oversight Group (IOG) of compliance exceptions within 24 hours of identification. The IOG will meet as necessary based on the occurrence and resolution of compliance exceptions or upon the occurrence of a material event. Minutes from the IOG meetings are posted to the Florida PRIME website.

In addition to the compliance testing performed by Federated, SBA Risk Management and Compliance conducts daily independent testing on Florida PRIME using a risk-based approach. Under this approach, each IPS parameter is ranked as "High" or "Low" with respect to the level of risk associated with a potential guideline breach. Negative test results are subject to independent verification and review for possible escalation. These rankings, along with the frequency for testing, are reviewed and approved by the IOG on an annual basis or more often if market conditions dictate. Additionally, any parameter reported in "Fail" status on the Federated compliance report, regardless of risk ranking, is also independently verified and escalated accordingly. The results of independent testing are currently reported monthly to the IOG.
